H.I.T. or Miss

Lessons Learned from Health Information Technology Implementations
H.I.T. or Miss: Lessons Learned from Health Information Technology Implementations

Jonathan Leviss, MD, Editor
Brian Gugerty, DNS, MS, RN; Bonnie Kaplan, PhD; Gail Keenan, PhD, RN; Larry Ozeran, MD; Eric Rose, MD; Scot Silverstein, MD, Associate Editors

HIT Implementation: Learn from the Past, and Succeed in the Future

In H.I.T. or Miss: Lessons Learned from Health Information Technology Implementations, the editors—each one a successful electronic health record (EHR) and health information technology (HIT) project leader—have collected case studies of HIT implementations that didn’t go as planned. Their expert insight is offered on key obstacles they overcame to leverage IT and modernize and transform healthcare. Through the study of failed HIT implementations, H.I.T. or Miss: Lessons Learned from Health Information Technology Implementations shares key lessons every HIT project manager, informatics and technology health system leader, hospital executive, policy maker, and service and technology provider must know in order to succeed with HIT.

This practical text presents a model that allows IT and other personnel to discuss HIT failures in a safe, protected manner, providing an opportunity to focus on lessons learned after a failed initiative.

The editor and associate editors all served on the 2007 leadership board of the Clinical Information Systems Working Group of the American Medical Informatics Association (AMIA).